BUNK OFF THIS BANK HOLIDAY AT HURLSTON HALL

Those looking for inspiration on how to make the very most of the May bank holiday should head for a golf and spa weekend at Hurlston Hall Golf and Country Club.

Set within 135 acres of beautiful parkland on the outskirts of Southport, Hurlston Hall is a sanctuary of golf, pampering and fine dining.

Renowned for its challenging 18-hole golf course, designed by famous golf course architect and writer Donald Steel, the club is open to the public.

Budding Tiger Woods can enjoy a lesson with a PGA Professional, before perfecting their swing on the Driving Range or teeing off on the course.

If you prefer to pamper than putt, why not relax and unwind in the resort's own spa, offering a range of luxury treatments including a maxi spa day, where guests can be pampered with a course of four treatments using beauty industry favourite OPI products, including lunch, beverages and full use of the leisure club facilities.

The resort's leisure spa also includes a luxury swimming pool, steam room and sauna, as well as a gym, new ladies only gym and bistro where you can catch up over a coffee and cake.

After a day on the fairway enjoy a delicious dinner in the club's own restaurant, featuring breath-taking views across the Lancashire countryside and serving an array of quality home-cooked dishes.

Located in the scenic village of Scarisbrick, visitors wanting to make the most of the weekend can reserve a room at a selection of family-friendly hotels recommended by the Club.
